

New name

INTRO:

Let's give new names to those mundane items surrounding us!

This activity is about unleashing your inner wordsmith and setting your imagination free. You can get as obscure, random, or unconventional as you want!

There are:

X no wrong answers

X no rules

X no boundaries

Grab your thinking caps and get creative. Give your toaster a name that sounds like it belongs in a fantasy novel or bestow your toothbrush with a title fit for a superhero.

ACTIVITY:

Brainstorm new names for things. Have fun, be quirky and bring a personal story to things if you can.

When developing names think about:

- What is the shape and form?
- Does it have a surprising feature or function?
- How could you humanise it?
- If it was an animal, what would it be?

We've given you some festive things to think about on the next page. Look beyond our list if you prefer to the objects you have around you.

Your stapler is begging to be called something more inspiring.

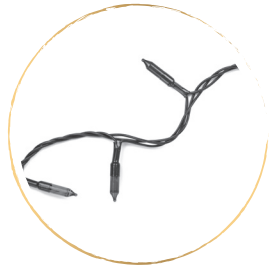

THIS HELPS:

- Practise looking at things with fresh eyes
- Explore bringing a personal perspective to ideas
- Embrace left field thinking
